Boys, Giris, Parents, Everybody, Look Here!

Boys, girls, fathers and mothers-these two paragraphs are especially dedicated to you. P. Saup, 102 Commercial avenue has brought on the largest stock of toys and confectionaries ever opened in Cairo. We shall not attempt to enumerate. We shall only say that the supply embraces everything yet invented to please, instruct and entertain little boys and girls Many of the toys are highly ornamental; others are very curious, and all are fully forty per cent, cheaper than like article were ever before offered in this market, Little boys and girls, even folks of mature growth, find it impossible to pass Saup's establishment without stopping. The attractions inside are irresistible. And no wonder. Think of twenty-six large cases of toys-steamboats, locomotives, soldiers, horses, dogs, cats, elephants, dolls, toy furniture-toys that walk and ery-do everything but think and talkanimals that howl and bark and squeal and bellow-balls, marbles-things curious, things ingenious, things ornamental nd all so cheap that anybody can secure a full supply for Christmas! Then again there are the confectionsthe largest and best stock ever seen in Cairo. Candles, mint and gum drops, fancy candles and kisses-everything in the eardy line, and all of the purest quality and most popular brand. Lot enough. If you want toys and confections for the holidays or any other days, there is one place where you can suit yourself beyond loubt, and that place is at P. Saup's 102 Commercial avenue. nov17tf.

MONDAY EVENING, 1 Nov. 28, 1870.

Our present report, which embraces but two days transactions, indicates a more active market than we had at the date of our last issue, and receipts of flour and produce have increased materially. Our levee, to-day, presented quite an animated appearance, as the long lines of freight cars were being rapidly unloaded, and their contents conveyed to the various wharfboats for immediate shipment, or piled up on the levee slope for sale.

Low grades of flour were in good de mand, and being scarce, prices of these descriptions are especially firm. Good to choice flours are in good supply and quiet the demand being confined to filling orders. Oats and hay are in good request, and the quotations in our last issue have been well sustained.

Receipts of corn, as yet, are extremely light; but little of the new crop being really in good shipping order. Particulars of all other items are noted under their respective headings, to which we refe hose interested.

Flour-has been more active, and in addition to a moderate shipping demand for low grades, we note an improved local and order demand for the better grades, which we hope may be continued. The sales re-ported comprised: 100 bbls common flour......84 00
